#NHS_LENS

POWERFUL PERSONALITY

The #NHS_Lens team recently held an interactive session with Dr. Vijay Trivedi, a well-known Physician Hardoi.

. Ms. Avni Agarwal , a member of the NHS Information and Broadcasting Club, led the discussion. She asked important questions about how the rainy season affects health and how to prevent common illnesses.

Dr. Tripathi shared useful tips on staying healthy, including the importance of good hygiene, a balanced diet, and getting medical care when needed.

The session was very successful and the practical advice of Dr. Tripathi will help & protect the families of the viewers during the rainy season. Dr. Tripathi's insights helped everyone understand the connection between climate changes and health better.

The team left the event with valuable information and positive memories.

Impact of Global Warming & Human Life

Global warming has profound effects on human life, touching almost every aspect of our daily existence. As Earth's temperatures rise due to increased greenhouse gas emissions, we experience more frequent and severe heat waves, which can lead to heat-related illnesses and exacerbate conditions like cardiovascular and respiratory diseases. Rising temperatures also contribute to more intense and unpredictable weather events, including hurricanes, floods, and droughts, which disrupt communities, damage infrastructure, and strain emergency services. The melting of polar ice and glaciers causes sea levels to rise, threatening coastal cities with flooding and erosion, which displaces populations and creates economic challenges. Additionally, global warming affects food security by altering growing conditions for crops and increasing the frequency of extreme weather events that can ruin harvests. Changes in climate also impact water resources, leading to shortages and affecting drinking water availability. Health risks extend to the spread of diseases, as warmer temperatures and changing weather patterns can expand the range of vectors like mosquitoes that carry diseases such as malaria and dengue fever. Addressing these impacts requires global cooperation to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, build resilient infrastructure, and adapt to changing conditions to safeguard human well-being and promote sustainable living.

“One hour per day of study in your chosen field is all it takes. One hour per day of study will put you at the top of your field within three years. Within five years you’ll be a national authority. In seven years, you can be one of the best people in the world at what you do.”
